

How do I choose a solar installer?

Choosing a solar installer can feel like a daunting task if you're not sure what to look for. There are a number of important factors to consider when making a big financial investment such as going solar, and understanding what types of questions to ask potential installers will help you find the right company for your specific needs.

Should you choose a small Solar Installer?

O'Meara notes that with many large installers, consumers have no say as to what type of panel is purchased or how the system is installed. If a homeowner envisions being part of the design, purchase, and installation of the solar system and its components, a smaller installer is ideal. Your solar set up doesn't need special configurations/panels.

Do solar installers rely on subcontractors?

In some cases, solar installers rely on subcontractors to perform some, or all, of the work for your solar installation. It's a common practice industry-wide, but make sure your installer is upfront with you about who will be completing the work on your home.

Do solar installers need a license?

Solar installers should always carry the necessary licensing and insurance to operate, which vary depending on the state (s) where they conduct business. Most licensing information is available online publicly, and trusted installation companies should be able to provide in-depth information upon request.
