

Solar manufacturer Yingli Energy has achieved what it described as a "critical milestone" after its restructuring plan was formally approved by a Chinese court.

The newly restructured Yingli will return to healthy development as its debt ratio is expected to drop to a medium or low level in the industry, and its cash flow will be greatly improved.

In a June 9 filing to the U.S. SEC, Yingli said a municipal court in Hebei province appointed legal and financial advisers to restructure Yingli Energy (China) Co. Ltd., including ...

With the court's ruling in effect, new Yingli will begin the process of changing its shareholding and relocating its plants.
